Dr. Lucas Murrey's Statement from 21 March 2024

Background:

After matching with and giving my number to Kelly Gibbons aka Kel Culb Gib aka kcg, I became suspicious of the cagey nature of her heavily-filtered images and lost interest. The only thing I did to Gibbons was block her. Instead of moving on, she went online and vindictively posted my picture in a Facebook group that she felt was a “safe-space to call out guys that have been disrespectful”. For about a year, she constantly bumped her own post about me to incite more reactions while also creating many posts gossiping about other people, one who was deceased and could not harm anyone.

For years at least, if not more than 238 Facebook accounts, mostly anonymous and/or fake, commented on Gibbon’s post about me. Out of these accounts, I have thus far only named ten (10) individuals in my lawsuit who have stepped over the line and broken the law. It is likely I will add a few more. These allegations include libel, false light, invasion of privacy, sexual discrimination etc. Out of the 10 defendants, I briefly met one for less than 15 minutes and do not recall meeting any others.

One of the defendants, Elly Shariat, had the gall to fabricate a totally impractical story that I matched with her on a dating app and appeared at a hotel where she was dining. I have never met this person in my life, I certainly do not recall having any interest in her, and I do not have any record of communication with her.

Since then, these defendants have appeared on national TV and created a website alleging that I sued 50 women and committed acts which in truth and actual fact never occurred. These lies have spread across the nation and I will therefore be adding slander and unjust enrichment to my complaint against defendants.

In short, most women don't spend all their time making trashy posts on Facebook. The acts of these defendants are hate-fueled and unrelentless; said Facebook losers rage in their war against people who have no idea they have been targeted. One can name them a female version of incels: “femcels”. The glue of their group is their hatred of men. Worse, there is clearly an even darker side to this conspiracy. Said Facebook groups are known to have caused people to lose their livelihoods. In some instances, innocent people die. These serious crimes against our democratic constitutional republic designed to protect our peace and happiness can be traced back to the non-chalance, misrepresentation and unlawful “guidance” from Facebook administrators and/or moderators, including Paola Sanchez.

He had a partner 10000%.

Something similar happened to me years ago. Was on a layover in different city. Went to eat at a bar across the street from the hotel. Met a guy there and turns out he was staying at the same hotel. After talking for a while at the bar I invited him back to my room and we talked for a few more hours and things were starting to get hot and heavy.

He said he was gunna go grab a condom from his room and then just never came back. I was confused so I took the details he had told me (hometown, company he worked for, name) and quickly found his fb. His cover photo was of his wife and their newborn child. 🤔

I've had experiences since that seemed totally explainable on their end only to find out that they're cheating. It's becoming super common unfortunately. Sorry that happened, best to just block and move on!

And to reiterate my previous statement from 15 March 2024:

This action is not a game, and the accusations against the defendants are serious. For years key defendants obsessively tracked, stalked and incited harassment against me. These are women with whom I had little to no interaction. In every case of interaction, I rejected each one of them and cut them off, quite swiftly. Instead of going their separate ways, they went on for months and years to spread misinformation about me and countless others. Their actions were deliberate, and they are now playing the victims.

I would like to preface that I support a safe space for women to protect themselves against being stalked, harassed, or harmed, and not the other way around. These women exploited the concept of a safe space to gossip, defame and cyberbully anyone at whim. Not only is this illegal, it is overwhelmingly selfish on their part to put their needs and amusement over the privacy and rights of others.

To give you a glimpse of how far these defendants go, please take a look at two of them (Kelly Gibbons and Olivia Burger) being admonished by others in the above-noted images.

Gibbons, above all, misinterprets this concept of a safe space by stating, “this is a safe space to call out men who have been disrespectful”, after satirically calling out the ability to gossip about people who are not able to defend themselves. And Burger also uses Facebook pointings to trash people she has never even met.

Again, these are women who value privacy for themselves, but do not see that as a right for others.

Even as they have a pending lawsuit against them for defamation and invasion of privacy etc., they are creating webpages and contacting the media to broadcast their blatant misrepresentations, which is, in the least, absolutely foolish on their parts. After reviewing their interviews and postings, I would like to address a few points:

1. The only thing I did to Olivia Burger was reject her. This is why her story is missing any substantiating circumstance of wrongdoing to her. When I met Burger, I felt her pictures concealed certain attributes and lacked the overall perspective from her total in-person appearance. Let me be clear that this meeting should not be categorized as a date. I do not want to be referred to as someone who went on a date with Burger. Within a few minutes, I ordered a pizza away from the location and made an excuse that I had to pick it up. I ended the interaction and fearing that I had been insensitive, sent her a text the next day stating: “The pizza was delicious. I was pretty tired, sorry.” Afterwards, I never thought about her again, until it came to my attention that she was obsessively writing about me and stating my name in multiple Facebook groups. It even came to my attention that she talked about me on podcasts, immediately after I rejected her. However, she has gone on TV misrepresenting that “she ended the date early and didn't think about him until years later.” (KCal News Interview) Burger even states, “I have never had a date like this, ever.” However, please take a look at her own post where she states that she met a married man, practically off the streets, and invited him to her hotel room whereupon he also made an excuse to disappear. In what sense can anyone believe my unremarkable meeting and quick exit away from Burger was by far the most egregious event she has had with a man?

2. Regarding Vanessa Valdez: it was not my first interaction with her. She had matched with me before and she chose to do so again. From my recollection, we have never had a successfully pleasant conversation and I rightfully cut off the connection with her. From that moment, I never contacted her again. I never thought of her again. However, Valdez was a big contributor in these conversations invading my privacy and inciting harassment. Whereas I left her alone, she is the one who pursued this mob rule against me. I am the victim, here.

3. In their GoFundMe page, they have a post by a person named Ely Shariat, who completely fabricates a wild story about going to a hotel and encountering me. I have made it clear to all defendants that this story is pure fiction, and yet, they put this on their GoFundMe page to deliberately shed me in false light.

These very acts and theatrics, alone, are exactly the definition of defamation, false light, and invasion of privacy. I am just one individual having to juggle the effects of these women who keep coming after me while I had no interest in any of them.

I would also like to point out that this is not like a Yelp review of a business. Yelp is an open forum. The Facebook groups denied me and countless other our right to exercise freedom of speech by denying us access to said Facebook groups so we could defend ourselves. I believe the moderator, Paola Sanchez, is jeopardizing both women and men. She is only self-interested and will help herself, not you. It is a shame that she leads a rather large group of women who are from various backgrounds, many that might not have the best intentions or acumen.

This is a case of prosecuting people who invade privacy, skew facts about others, harass others, and cyberbully. They thought they could get away with it. This is a case that must go to trial and prevail so that we all can enjoy real free speech without fear of being violated.

As a writer of non-fiction with a Ph.D from Yale University I am well aware of the truth.

As noted above, defendants have engaged the mainstream media ostensibly to continue their defamation, harassment and misrepresentations. However, they also have another ulterior purpose. Like criminals, defendants seek to anonymously obtain money from an anonymous source.

Because, in contrast to them, I am a good person, I prefer using a new style of money that, unlike our legacy financial system, will help everyone on earth, rich and poor alike, and one that is private, but not anonymous.

Thus if you would like to fund my lawsuit and/or my work, please send me BSV:
